Skills stem from school programs

TWO Perth private schools are focusing on building students' innovative and enterprise skills through Stem programs.

St Hilda's Anglican School for Girls students have won state ICT competitions, while All Saints' College has a four-facet approach.

The schools say these programs help students, such as All Saints' College Year 11 students Kush Jog and Jessica Tregilles to become innovative problem solvers. See more in the Perth's Finest Private Schools magazine, inside today's paper
